Jabal al-Mukabber... raids and arrests

For the fourth consecutive day, the occupation authorities continue the policy of "collective punishment" in the village of Jabal Al-Mukabber, and the occupation authorities including "police, tax, municipality, and Ministry of Health" carried out raids into shops in the village.

The merchants explained that the forces stormed several commercial stores, checked all papers and licenses, searched and examined the goods in the stores, issued violations, and confiscated the goods.

The forces also carried out separate arrests from the village of Jabal al-Mukabber.

Since last Thursday, the forces have continued to place cement cubes at the entrance to the Al-Jdaira neighborhood in the village, where they stop vehicles as they enter or leave the neighborhood, and begin a search and identity check procedure.

The siege of Al-Aqsa continues

For the third consecutive month, the occupation authorities continue their siege of Al-Aqsa Mosque, spreading at all its gates and imposing restrictions on entry, checking identities and searching all arrivals before allowing them to enter the mosque.

Settlers' incursions into Al-Aqsa also continue, and 121 settlers carried out their incursions into the mosque, during the morning and afternoon incursions, under the protection of the occupation forces.

The occupation authorities also continue to spread throughout the streets of the Old City and the roads leading to Al-Aqsa Mosque, and continue to prevent sitting in the Damascus Gate area.

Confrontations and the use of live bullets

In the evening hours, confrontations broke out in the village of Issawiya, and the forces fired live bullets randomly, while young men threw firecrackers and Molotov cocktails.

In Shu'fat refugee camp, forces stormed the camp's streets, and scattered confrontations broke out in the place.
